

OVERVIEW

IN AUSTRALIA, AMP is a leading provider of retail and corporate superannuation and retirement income products. They have one of the largest aligned planner forces in Australia and New Zealand. They are also one of the region's largest investment managers, with more than $114 billion in assets under management (as of December 31, 2009). AMP has approximately 795,000 shareholders, more than 3.6 million customers, more than 3,500 employees and more than 2,000 financial planners in Australia and New Zealand.

With a large customer and asset management base, AMP has been aggressive at streamlining their organization, as well as looking for better ways of delivering higher quality services to their customers, while managing their business and their growth more effectively.

CORPORATE CHALLENGES

Key Information Workers were unable to find needed information easily and/or they had to use workarounds to internal processes in order to get the information. At times, these workarounds were at odds with the company's internal policies and they risked violating these policies to obtain the necessary data.

Management also needed the ability to monitor obligations and rights, receive notifications of pending contract expirations, and implement a sophisticated contract approval process with alerts and approval escalation procedures.

CLM MATRIX STRATEGY

The CLM Matrix team worked with AMP's key IT business analyst who owned the interface with the functional business units and
